Raising the Bar: Putting Candidates First, With Recruiting Teams in the Driving Seat

In the rapidly evolving landscape of HR tech, Humanly's acquisition of Teamable marks a pivotal moment. Humanly will integrate Teamable's capabilities into their Al-driven platform. The Humanly team views the acquisition as more than "simply" an acquisition, it's advancing a vision. Being the first Al-powered end-to-end recruiting solution means more than just innovation; it's about leveling the playing field and providing cutting-edge solutions historically not available to mid-market organizations. Humanly is committed to providing operational insights that are holistic, recognizing that point solutions lead to fragmented data and poor experiences for recruiting teams. Humanly was founded around the belief that customers deserve a single tool to engage with candidates seamlessly across their journey. This vision is about more than tracking across recruiting efforts, it's about enabling human connection and timely hiring interactions. By designing our tool with candidate experience at its core, we're ensuring that hiring teams no longer need to juggle different solutions for each interaction, ultimately leading to a cohesive experience and integrated data.
