KAMLOOPS, BRITISH COLUMBIA,
CANADA, May 28, 2024

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Danielle Ching McNamee, a TRU Law alumni practicing criminal law at Kamloops' well-established law firm, Nicola Law Group, has been awarded ThreeBestRated® for the first time. This prestigious award is not just a recognition of her accomplishments, but a testament to her exceptional skills and dedication, because her expertise and knowledge were subjected to intense 50-Point Inspection criteria of ThreeBestRated® before she was honored with the award.

Danielle and her team are excited about this development. She has worked with Nicola Law Group since 2019, however, within this short span of time, she proved to be an exceptional criminal defence lawyer with a deep dedication to serving the community. She has emerged as a rising star both within the firm and in her area of practice.

Danielle started her career immediately after her graduation in 2018 after attaining a Law Society of BC gold medal for academic excellence. She is committed to showcasing a full-fledged dedication to her cases and achieving outstanding results for her clients charged with criminal charges, throughout British Columbia. Her extensive trial practice covers both BC Provincial Court and BC Supreme Court, where she has defended clients against all types of criminal charges, up to and including first-degree murder, and a variety of sex offences. She has also completed a judicial clerkship for five justices of the Supreme Court of BC, further enhancing her legal skills.

Driven by the desire to help others, Danielle enjoys the privilege of sharing her knowledge with law students. In 2023, Danielle along with Brad Smith, KC, who is now a justice of the Supreme Court of BC, coached students to draft and present legal arguments for the BC Law School Competitive Moot.
