

Humans In Love With Their Robots bOydestiNy Will Release "Just One Touch" A Song That Examines This Complex Relationship

Can a human ever love a robot?

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA, UNITED STATES, June 4, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- bOydestiny, the American songwriter, singer, and rapper who composed the renowned "Emma Watson Song," will release a brand new single on June 6th, 2024, entitled "Just One Touch." This, bOydestiNy's latest musical work, is a song focused on the eminent future arrival of robotic companions in our households and what happens when robot owners become emotionally involved with their technology.

Further, the song explores the question of how these owners will handle their wish for intimacy with their hard-wired love soul mates. According to the composer's imagination, getting the robot companion to reciprocate love will be as simple as "Just One Touch." Evidently, a "Love Button" will exist on all robot companion models in the future. Simply pressing the "Love Button" once will initiate a whirlwind variety of protocols and algorithms that will enable the "Artificial Intelligence" (AI)-functions of the robot to simulate all the attributes and peculiarities of the emotion known by humans as "Love."

The lyrics in the song pre-suppose that each robot companion can be also customized with regard to physical features, race and gender. bOydestiny has also created, directed, produced and edited a "Just One Touch" music video that illustrates these complex human-robot love interactions. This music video was released on the YouTube Platform on May 12th, 2024. As of June 3rd, 2024, the video had garnered over 1/2 a million views and has close to 25,000 favorable
