Selah Moonie, born Selah Halie Simone Poitier, is a native of Nassau, Bahamas. Her musical journey began as a self-taught musician and church pianist, eventually earning her a scholarship to perform with The Bahamas National Symphony Orchestra at age 15 on bass. Selah's extensive training includes studies at The University of The Bahamas, Berklee College of Music, where she graduated with a B.M. in Jazz Performance, and Music Business studies at the Musician's Institute in Hollywood, CA.

Selah's career highlights include winning The Bahamas' Ministry of Tourism's songwriting competition, receiving praise for her unique artistry, performance and songwriting skills from Grammy Award-winning artists such as India Arie, Dianne Reeves and Terri Lyne Carrington, opening up for Hollywood Rock & Roll Hall of Famers George Clinton & The Parliament Funkadelic, and performing at music festivals and prestigious venues across the U.S. Her music, influenced by legends like Nina Simone, Dianne Reeves, Exuma, Prince, and Bob Marley, is a blend of various genres, showcasing her versatility and unique sound.

Despite facing numerous challenges and setbacks, including visa issues and finding herself homeless during the global pandemic in LA, a resilient Selah regrouped and founded her band, The Liberation Village in 2022, her entertainment, management and production company Poitier Entertainment in 2023 to manage her band and son, and this year, she launched and signed herself to her Independent record label, Halie Moon Records to release new music globally. Selah's mission to heal and liberate through music is evident in every note she plays and sings.
