York, England – The Main Company, a family-run kitchen, reclaimed flooring and custom furniture company, is excited to announce the launch of its new range of high-quality reclaimed wood flooring in North Yorkshire. Available in limited quantities, every piece of wood has been salvaged from a variety of interesting buildings, including Old Textile Mills, European Barns and historic buildings such as the Allied Bakery.

Passionate about offering homeowners the highest quality, unique, Reclaimed Wood Flooring, each and every plank in The Main Company's new range has been meticulously handcrafted and restored by on-site experts in Green Hammerton to bring out the stunning patinas and other rustic features to offer a truly unique engineered flooring that is bespoke to each space.

Alex Main, Director at The Main Company, comments: "With the recent rise in awareness for sustainability and eco-conscious materials filtering through to design, reclaimed wood is a great option that not only considers the environment but also introduces an authentic charm to the home."

A sustainable choice, The Main Company's high-quality Reclaimed Wood Flooring adds a stunning focal point to a room and is ideal for both commercial and residential spaces due to its hard-wearing surface. The Main Company's beautiful wood can be found in North Yorkshire's shopfits, bars, and restaurants, such as Nando's, Belstaff, Tonkotsu, Peter Lik, and Cripps, as well as in stunning, bespoke kitchen projects.

From Weathered Barn Oak, Burnt Grey Oak and Reclaimed Heritage Oak to traditional and rustic pine, The Main Company provides a wide range of colours and finishes to help home, and business owners find the perfect style to complement their space and unique aesthetic preferences.
