The AqueoUS Vets Channel Partner Program consists of tier-1 manufacturers' representatives that drive a collaborative approach supporting water utilities, consultants, and contractors, while further protecting our communities across the US through sustainable access to clean water. Founded on the mission to remove PFAS and other contaminants of emerging concern from the US water supply to protect our public health and the environment, AV's channel partners represent AV's cutting-edge water filtration treatment systems locally, offering a guarantee of unparalleled engineering and design support.

“As regulatory efforts increase to protect our communities against various harmful contaminants, including the six federally regulated PFAS compounds, the industry requires experienced, proven, and reliable solutions that offer the lowest cost of ownership,” said AqueoUS Vets President & CEO Dr. Mirka Wilderer. “Expanding our Channel Partners Program helps AqueoUS Vets serve our communities nationwide faster. Together with our partners, we are setting the new water filtration industry standard and fulfilling our commitment to provide the highest level of customer value and project management.”

With a concept-to-commission methodology, AqueoUS Vets offers a turnkey approach to system design, media selection, manufacturing, installing, and servicing custom water treatment systems, ensuring long-term operational reliability and the lowest cost of ownership.
