The depreciation of the Yen has created both opportunities and challenges within the Pokémon card market. For collectors outside of Japan, the lower value of the Yen means more affordable prices for Japanese cards. However, this also leads to increased demand, which can result in scarcity of certain highly sought-after cards.

Card Wizards Australia has established direct contacts with Japanese Pokémon card experts, ensuring that their customers receive the most accurate and up-to-date information. This network allows Card Wizards to provide unique insights and advice to collectors and investors navigating this evolving market.

"With our strong connections to Japanese Pokémon card experts, we are uniquely positioned to guide our customers through these market changes," said Sherwood. "Our goal is to help collectors make informed decisions, whether they are purchasing for personal enjoyment or investment purposes."
