she/her

Dr. Richardson's journey to success is marked by her relentless pursuit of excellence across diverse industries. Hailing from the vibrant environments of Los Angeles and Inglewood, her early exposure to dynamic experiences paved the way for her illustrious career. Starting as a dedicated law enforcement officer, she rose to the rank of police lieutenant, demonstrating her commitment to public service.

Transitioning into real estate, Dr. Richardson's unwavering dedication propelled her to become the first Black woman appointed to the CA State Licensing Board by former Governor Jerry Brown. Her entrepreneurial spirit flourished with ventures in the food and beverage industry, including the esteemed California Vintage Wine Bistro in Anaheim and Braymar Wines, renowned for their exceptional Red Blend and California Chardonnay.

In addition to her ventures in traditional industries, Dr. Richardson has made significant strides in the burgeoning cannabis sector. Through brands like Greenwood & Company and Just Mary Brand & Delivery, she has become a trailblazer, advocating for diversity and innovation within the cannabis community.

Not content with limiting herself to one field, Dr. Richardson has diversified her portfolio with Marlo Nicole Productions, offering top-tier production services for podcasts and small-scene productions. Her commitment to education and empowerment is evident in her authored work, "Cannabis Strains for the Modern Professional: A Guide to Boosting Productivity and Wellness," catering to professionals seeking to explore the benefits of cannabis in their daily lives.

Looking ahead, Dr. Richardson aims to inspire future generations of entrepreneurs through her flagship venture, Marlo Richardson's Business Bullish. Her tenacity, business acumen, and unwavering dedication to personal and professional growth have culminated in this well-deserved recognition of her Doctorate in Business and Entrepreneurship.
