ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL, UNITED STATES, June 12, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In celebration of

This project is about celebrating the irreplaceable role grandparents play in our lives and preserving those memories for future generations”

Jeanette Palmer, Owner of Right at Home - Northwest Suburban

the unique bond between grandparents and their families, the Northwest Suburban Office of Right at Home, led by Jeanette Palmer, proudly announces an exciting community project for Grandparents Day. Teaming up with acclaimed local photographer Suzanne Fasolo of Pickle Book Designs, this initiative will offer free, professional family photo shoots for three (3) lucky families to honor grandparents and grandparent-like figures.

Jeanette Palmer's personal story is the heart of this project. "Growing up, I never had the chance to meet my maternal grandparents, and although I lived with my paternal grandmother until I was four, I don't have any pictures of her," she shares. "With no living relatives to tell her stories, I often wish I could know her better and see what similarities we share."

Driven by this longing for connection, Jeanette wants to ensure others can capture and cherish these invaluable family moments. "I want to help others hold onto the precious moments with their grandparents that I never got to experience," she says. "This project is about celebrating the irreplaceable role grandparents play in our lives and preserving those memories for future generations."

Nomination Process: Community members are invited to nominate their grandparents or grandparent-like figures for a complimentary family photo shoot. Nominations will be accepted through Friday, July 12.

Selection: 3 Chosen nominees will enjoy a professional photo session with Suzanne Fasolo of Pickle Book Designs, whose photography beautifully captures heartfelt moments. The 3 families will be selected the week of July 15th with more information on how to schedule their family photo shoots.
