Indianapolis has given my family so much and Sit Still is a way I can give back. I am thrilled to offer the children of our community a place they can be themselves while having fun along the way.”

Nicole Danielson

Nicole is an Indiana native who grew up in Evansville and has called Indianapolis home for the past decade. After graduating from Indiana University, Nicole has worked in the corporate retail and sales industry for the past fifteen years. She is excited to apply her skills of communication, customer service, and teamwork from the corporate world to Sit Still.

Now, with three children of her own and a passion for improving the local community, Nicole saw an opportunity to fill a need in Indianapolis. “One question that kept surfacing when talking with mom friends was where I get my three boys hair cut. I never had a consistent or good answer and recognized the white space in the Indy market. After running across the Sit Still concept, I instantly heard my calling and knew I wanted to bring this innovative concept to Indianapolis. I love the idea of being able to offer parents a destination for this service and take the guesswork and stress out of it.”
