Rising Demand for Streaming Services Drives Market Growth

The rise of streaming services is a significant driver propelling the video processing solutions market forward. Streaming platforms have become integral to modern digital entertainment consumption, offering users real-time access to audio, video, and live broadcasts over the internet. Video processing solutions optimize these services by enhancing video quality, reducing latency, and enabling adaptive bitrate streaming, thereby ensuring a seamless viewer experience. For instance, in November 2023, Instituto Brasileiro de Geografia e Estatística (IBGE) reported that 43.4% of households with TVs in Brazil subscribed to paid streaming services, underscoring the growing preference for digital content consumption.
