Aging Population's Impact On The Ocular Inflammation Treatment Market

The rise in the aging population is expected to drive the ocular inflammation treatment market. Aging refers to the natural process of growing older, characterized by a gradual decline in physiological functions and tissue integrity. The aging population is rising due to factors such as increased life expectancy, declining birth rates, and advancements in healthcare leading to improved longevity. Ocular inflammation treatment is essential for aging individuals to manage and preserve their vision by addressing inflammation-related conditions that can arise with age.
