cloud-based product that empowers businesses to capitalize on distributions from Class Action Settlements in which they may be eligible to participate; providing an alerting system and linking them to Claims Administrator websites where claims can be started on a DIY basis. Users can search through hundreds of settlement cash flow opportunities, with distributable funds in excess of $20 Billion.

This new cloud-based platform for businesses simplifies the search process, allowing users to Find, Follow and File claims in class action settlements. These settlement opportunities arise from Court Actions involving alleged antitrust activity, Securities Litigation, Product Liability, and more.

SettlementAlerts.com empowers everyone from the C-Suite to Purchasing, where they can find cases of interest, follow their important event dates, ultimately link them to file claims. Companies can use SettlementAlerts.com to find settlements that apply to their business model. They can use the Claims Administrator links to start the claims process, where valid claims can lead to surprising distributions; thereby turning their File Cabinet or Legal Department into a source of revenue. After setting up preferences, users can receive alerts about new settlements as they are published. They can also receive alerts about critical filing deadlines and more. Because the product resides in the cloud, it can be accessed from anywhere.

For many years, businesses have relied on settlement eligibility notification by traditional means, such as mailed or emailed notices. These notices are often ignored, discarded or end up in the spam box, and their filing deadlines forgotten and missed. As a result, businesses may often pay hefty recovery fees to third party claim filers. Often a last-minute choice, using a 3rd party can pare potential cash awards by up to 33% in recovery fees. SettlementAlerts.com puts the power of the purse back in your company's hands. After setting up preferences, users can receive notifications about new settlements as they are published.

SettlementAlerts.com solves the problem of being uninformed about certain valuable cases. Users can "Find" payment opportunities in their preferred categories, searching through hundreds of active cases. It allows them "Follow" their cases of interest. Users can enable alerts via email or text; opting in for alerts for New Case postings as well as critical events. The system simplifies the final step by providing direct links, when available, to the claims administrator websites; There businesses can "File" their claims. There's even an Unclaimed Fund finder which links to the web pages of nearly one hundred different government agencies.

SettlementAlerts.com can keep its users informed about important critical events, and provides alerts for a variety of deadlines via email or text. With just a few clicks of the mouse, users can set alerts for critical events like Claim Filing Deadlines, Objection Deadlines, Opt-Out Deadlines, Fairness Hearings and more.

Leander Carilli, CEO of SettlementAlerts.com said: "Clients reached out to us and said, 'I wish there was something out there that could aggregate the settlements in one place, so that I didn't have to wait for notices in the mail, and calls from 3rd parties.' SettlementAlerts.com was designed with them in mind, providing one location where users can keep an eye on their settlements of interest." Mr. Carilli was recently a guest on Viewpoint with Dennis Quaid, discussing the types of settlements that might be available to interested businesses and consumers. "One of the most common reasons that people do not file claims in class action settlements is they believe they are not worth anything." Dispelling that notion, Mr. Carilli says that many of his clients have collected millions of dollars; several even netting over ten million over the years.

SettlementAlerts.com is available for small and large businesses alike. "There's a plan for every
