The SoBurr
Experience

A unique design experience

The name, The SoBurr Experience, combines Burr's surname with an embodiment of his design philosophy, influenced by his friend's coined phrases, 'burrisms.' It also pays homage to Aaron Burr's historical significance, thereby fusing Jason Burr's passion for history and bringing personal and historical elements to the brand name.

Burr's approach centers on space planning and understanding the narratives behind each project. He places importance on learning about his clients' interests, preferences, and visions. This method is not about adhering to fleeting design trends but rather ensuring a space aligns well with its occupants and reflects modern interiors aesthetics.

Beyond aesthetic endeavors, Burr engages in volunteer activities with organizations such as Ronald McDonald House and Lighthouse DC, applying his design skills for community benefit. His work often incorporates eco-friendly design principles, showing a commitment to sustainability.

Looking ahead, Burr is keen to expand his project scope across Washington, DC, Baltimore, MD, and Richmond, VA, with interests in exploring design opportunities in coastal and mountain living settings, bringing luxury interiors to diverse landscapes. He addresses common client challenges such as lack of function and personal identity in spaces, which are crucial for homes and offices that truly reflect their users.

Clients appreciate Burr's unique approach, where he treats each one not just as a project but as a personal relationship. This approach helps avoid the common pitfalls of miscommunication in design collaborations. Burr believes that effective communication and understanding clients' unique needs are foundational to successful design outcomes.
