President of Cargo
Development at Fraport AG*

The Air Cargo Tech Summit, presented by Air Cargo Next, will be held Oct. 21-22 at the JW Marriott Frankfurt, just a few miles from Frankfurt Airport (FRA), providing an exceptional venue for exhibitors to highlight the groundbreaking technologies and innovative solutions reshaping the air cargo landscape. The partnership highlights Fraport's dedication to leading technological innovation as a global air cargo pioneer.

"Partnering with Frankfurt Airport for the Air Cargo Tech Summit 2024 is a huge step," stated JJ Hornblass, CEO of Air Cargo Next, producer of the Air Cargo Tech Summit. "This partnership not only enhances the summit experience but will accelerate the adoption of the cutting-edge technologies crucial for a more efficient air cargo future."

The summit boasts a comprehensive two-day agenda that includes keynote addresses, panel discussions, a tech demo challenge and interactive workshops led by top industry experts. It will cover the latest trends, challenges and advancements in air cargo technology. Attendees will have excellent networking opportunities with industry leaders, innovators and critical decision-makers from around the world, facilitating collaboration and knowledge exchange.

Max Philipp Conrady, Vice President of Cargo Development at Fraport AG, added, "As Europe's leading cargo hub, Frankfurt Airport is committed to driving technological advancements and operational excellence in the air cargo sector. Partnering with the Air Cargo Tech Summit 2024 aligns perfectly with our vision to remain at the forefront of industry innovation."

About Air Cargo Tech Summit:

The third annual Air Cargo Tech Summit, presented by Air Cargo Next and host partner Frankfurt Airport, will take place on Oct. 21-22 at the JW Marriott Frankfurt and provide participants with a foundation for technological advancements.
