Not only are our youth our future, but they're our present. Active youth participation is essential as they hold us all accountable to having courageous conversations about difficult topics.”

For the first time in Experiences Canada's 87-year history, the National Youth Forum 2024 will focus specifically on Reconciliation, a topic that is crucial for the future of our nation. The forum will provide a safe and inclusive platform for Canadian youth to share their perspectives and ideas on this very important subject.

Youth participants will complete their week with a series of podcasts created by youth / for youth. This is the first podcast platform of its kind that provides an opportunity for youth to add their voices to the national dialogue. Through the youth lens, they will collaborate to build ten differently sub-themed podcasts with the intention of sharing their first-hand experiences and lessons learned on their Reconciliation journey.

“Not only are our youth our future, but they’re our present,” says Paige Percy, ‘Generation Z’ Board Member, Experiences Canada, “Active youth participation is essential as they hold us all accountable to having courageous conversations about difficult topics.”

Paige added, “It’s important to mention that it’s not just about youth leaders coming to the Forum in Ottawa, but that they will bring Reconciliation back to their communities; coast to coast to coast. That’s where the impact happens – it’s about what youth do after they leave here. They’re the leaders of today who are committing to the process of Reconciliation and learning more about themselves and others in the process.”

Youth participants began Forum 2024 with a series of themed webinars designed with our partner the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation and led by esteemed Indigenous speakers on various sub-topics such as the Indigenous economy, the environment and residential school survivors.

Once they arrive in Ottawa, participants will attend various in-person learning activities throughout the region, including visits to Mādahòkì Farm, Zibi and Adaawe Indigenous Business Hub, where they will participate in workshops, discussions, and cultural experiences.

“We are thrilled to be hosting the National Youth Forum 2024 on Reconciliation,” says Deirdre Laframboise, CEO of Experiences Canada, “This is a unique opportunity for Canadian youth from diverse backgrounds and regions to come together to witness and share, and for all of us to hear what these youth have to share on such an important topic. We believe that by learning from experience and each other, we can all work towards a more inclusive and reconciled Canada.”

Experiences Canada is grateful for the support of the Government of Canada which has provided funding for this event through the Department of Canadian Heritage. Additional thanks go to the Forum 2024 partners: The National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation, The Indigenous Corporate Training Inc., Uniglobe Travel, and Youth Ottawa.
