The panel discussion, which will also include Texas Senator Tan Parker, will be moderated by Rich Buckley, head of public affairs at McKesson and Matt Williams, head of state government affairs. The panelists will focus on policy issues which affect community pharmacists including the role of pharmacy benefit managers (PBMs) in pharmacist reimbursement and prescription cost transparency for patients as Senator Reeves has sponsored legislation addressing both issues in Tennessee. Just prior to the panel, representatives from several national trade associations for pharmacists including the National Community Pharmacists Association (NCPA), the American Pharmacists Association (APhA), and the National Alliance of State Pharmacy Associations (NASPA) are scheduled to speak.
