

Automation Workz Prepares Algebra Afraid Front-liners for Tech Careers

Algebra fear is a real career barrier for millions of Americans, who would love to secure a high-paying tech career. Senseii Games removes that fear.

DETROIT, MI, US, June 26, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Many of the 95 million Front-liners, 59% of the American workforce, desire to be promoted into a tech career, but think it is out of reach as they “struggle with Algebra “the most significant barrier” to finishing a degree” or credential. According to the Mathematical Association of America report, Common Vision, “about 50 percent of American learners don’t pass college algebra with a grade of C or above.”

Senseii Games blocks create code

Automation Workz created Senseii Games as an admissions tool to measure the hands-on applied algebra/geometry skills of potential tech trainees, knowing it can confidently train front-liners with a 10th grade reading and 6th grade math competency for tech careers requiring coding.

Algebra fear is a real career barrier for millions of Americans, who would love to secure a high-paying tech career. Senseii Games removes that fear.”

Ida Byrd-Hill, CEO, Automation Workz

“Front-liners have been applying, in droves, to attend our cybersecurity ops, network engineering, AI & data analytics and tech project management certification training once they discovered they have hands-on applied algebra/geometry skills, even if theoretical Algebra scares them. With Zoom and hands-on video gaming/digital simulation lessons, Automaton Workz learners can successfully prepare for tech certification,” states Ida Byrd-

Hill, CEO.

Automation Workz Success Stories:

Jah moved from $50,000 to $105,000 to $130,000 salary for Cybersecurity job.
