Rising Prevalence of Chronic Diseases Driving Market Growth

The escalating prevalence of chronic diseases, which are illnesses lasting three months or longer and potentially worsening over time, is a key driver of the exosome diagnostic and therapeutic market. Exosomes serve as promising biomarkers in cancer diagnostics, enabling more sensitive disease monitoring and enhancing the accessibility of personalized medicine. By 2050, it is projected that there will be 142.66 million people worldwide with chronic diseases, underscoring the critical role of exosome technologies in disease management.
