Lead Actor*

Brotherhood, a modern western film, has entered post-production and is set to explore significant issues such as immigration, mental health, racism, and compassion within the setting of the American West.

The film follows Wale, a former enforcer for a crime syndicate, who seeks redemption in America. Struggling with his past, Wale faces the challenges of starting anew in Texas, where he unexpectedly finds camaraderie and kinship as a rancher. Despite the constant threat of danger, Wale must confront his inner demons and navigate a path toward healing and connection.

Gilbert De La Garza, one of the lead actors, expressed his enthusiasm: "This role has been a transformative experience for me. The themes of redemption and brotherhood are deeply resonant and incredibly timely."

Screenwriter Alanna Davis added, "We aimed to create a story that entertains while prompting viewers to reflect on important societal issues. I believe audiences will find Wale's journey both compelling and thought-provoking."

Cultured Cowboy: Bound By Brotherhood aims to resonate with audiences and stimulate meaningful discussions. Alongside De La Garza, Mark Omezi delivers a powerful performance that adds depth to the film's narrative.

Scheduled for a Summer 2025 release, Cultured Cowboy: Bound By Brotherhood is currently in post-production, with anticipation growing for its debut.
