Enhanced Transaction Security with Multiple Safety Nets

Understanding the critical importance of security and flexibility in frequently multi million dollar financial transactions where easy solutions are not always common, Q Exchange, LLC has integrated several safety nets into its service offerings. These include:

- Delaware Statutory Trusts (DSTs): Investors can name DSTs in their 1031 exchange to provide for a simple, loan already in place solution to continue with a Real Estate Investment. DSTs offered by Q Exchange partners are free from commission charges and experience significantly higher IRR metrics as a result.
- Tenants in Common (TICs): For those seeking co-ownership opportunities, TICs provide an excellent alternative, allowing for shared ownership of larger properties. Like the DST offering, TICs are also offered by Q Exchange partners at no commission markup, which again, offers a notable increase in dividend income paid for the same property sold traditionally.
- Installment Sale Trust: Escrowed funds may returned through a Installment Sale Trust to maintain capital gains deferral. If your intent is to perform a 1031 Exchange and despite your best efforts, you cannot place all or some of your exchange funds towards real property, Q Exchange partner firms can independently administrate a return of your relinquished property escrowed funds through the Installment Method at your direction.

Secure Your Capital Gains Tax Savings

By choosing Q Exchange, LLC's 1031 Intermediary Service, you will work with folks with direct training outside but inclusive of traditional real estate with a heavy focus on both privacy and data security.

"We are all about high networth and multi million dollar transactions and in special or complex circumstances." Explains Christian Ramsey.

"Easy Exchanges everyone can do reliably well, even the Brand name firms, and Q Exchange is less expensive than our competitors for vanilla 1031 Exchanges due to our process.

Other Exchanges that are not considered allowable or acceptable is where Q Exchange thrives, we personally review direct IRS Guidance and research obscure Revenue Rulings and pay careful attention to available Safe Harbors and definitions." Explains Christian Ramsey, AIF™.

"Well, it boils down to being able to work with not only IRS and Tax law language from several tax codes, but also Contract Law and/or Uniform Trust Law. We are able approach a Capital Gains situation from every angle and from multiple industries. Other 1031 Intermediary Service Firms are just that...IRC 1031 Qualified Intermediaries. The ability we have to work transactions...there is just no apples to apples comparison. Q Exchange is Better, Less Expensive, More Secure and run by highly trained Fiduciaries and Subject matter Experts with backgrounds outside of Real Estate."
