Working with MKCG enables us to penetrate new business sectors that deploy independent contractors regularly, ensuring they have the systems to operate efficiently and comply with regulations."

Wendy Greenland, Openforce CEO Mark Kollar, a seasoned expert with extensive experience in developing and marketing technology, will spearhead efforts to broaden Openforce's market presence. For over 20 years, Openforce has provided an innovative digital platform for businesses to manage their independent contractors and for insurance brokers to navigate complex insurance requirements seamlessly.

"We are thrilled to partner with MKCG. This collaboration represents a crucial step forward in our mission to market our digital platform and insurance products through independent brokers," said Wendy Greenland, President and CEO of Openforce. "Working with MKCG will enable us to penetrate new business sectors that deploy independent contractors regularly, ensuring they have the systems to operate efficiently and comply with federal, state, and local regulations."

Mark Kollar, Founder of MKCG, added, "Successful Insurtech companies must have a clear focus on solving their clients' problems. Openforce exemplifies this clarity with its focused expertise. Openforce's technological proficiency allows the company to adapt to a wide variety of customer needs, becoming a vital risk management component for the insurance products we will develop. We are excited to represent them and look forward to this groundbreaking partnership."
