Some of the key facts of the Postherpetic Neuralgia Market Report:

The Postherpetic Neuralgia market size is anticipated to grow with a significant CAGR during the study period (2020-2034)

In November 2023, Scilex Holding announced the successful completion of a Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP) inspection by the US FDA at Oishi Koseido's (Oishi) enhanced manufacturing facility for ZTlido in Japan. This successful audit enables Scilex to continue commercializing ZTlido, manufactured at a 250 kg scale at Oishi's facility.

A recent study by Jain et al. (2023) reported that the standardized annual incidence rates of herpes zoster from 2019 to 2021 ranged between 542 and 685 per 100,000 people.

According to the analysis, there were approximately 2,025,000 incident cases of herpes zoster in the 7MM (seven major markets) in 2022, and this number is expected to increase throughout the study period from 2020 to 2034.

In 2022, the United States recorded the highest number of incident cases of postherpetic neuralgia (PHN), totaling approximately 281,000 cases. It is anticipated that these cases will continue to rise by the year 2034.

In the EU4 countries and the UK, Germany reported the highest number of incident cases of postherpetic neuralgia (PHN) in 2022, with approximately 59,000 cases, whereas Spain had the lowest number of incident cases of PHN, around 18,000 cases in the same year.

Postherpetic Neuralgia Overview

Postherpetic neuralgia (PHN) is a chronic pain condition that occurs after a shingles infection (herpes zoster). It is characterized by severe, persistent pain in the area where the shingles rash occurred, lasting for months or even years after the rash has healed. PHN results from nerve damage caused by the shingles virus. Symptoms can include burning, sharp, or throbbing pain, sensitivity to touch, and itching.
