

Two Books by Wayne A. Richards have been Selected for Screenplay Adaptation

Wayne A. Richards is Reverend Gary Emas's pen name.

BRANSON , MISSOURI, UNITED STATES, July 4, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Renowned author and founder of Bread of Life Ministry and War Productions has announced that his two books, EL Elyon and Sacred Bones, have been selected for screenplay adaptations. These adaptations promise to bring riveting stories of faith, espionage, and historical conspiracy to the silver screen, merging deep spiritual themes with high-stakes adventure.

About the Adaptations:

The first screenplay, based on the novel El Elyon \(God of the Hebrews\), explores profound spiritual questions through the lens of an intense narrative. The book delves into the existence of God's angels and the hidden years of Jesus Christ, challenging the silence of historical and religious narratives imposed by the Vatican from 1940 to 1948. Emas's exploration arises from his personal divine encounters, which he experienced even during the times he was blind—a testament to his unwavering faith.

The second adaptation, Sacred Bones \(For Your Eyes Only\), shifts to a thrilling tale of espionage where Mossad agent Eli uncovers a Nazi plot to exterminate Jews globally. The story, rich in historical intrigue, features Eli's perilous journey across continents, uncovering a network of deceit that even implicates his own government. Written under Emas's pen name, Wayne A. Richards, this narrative was also penned during a period of blindness, with divine guidance playing a crucial role in its creation.
