The CMV Heroes Project aims to enhance support for military families while offering unique travel experiences. As part of this initiative, Creating Magic Vacations will donate a portion of each booking, in this new division, to Folds of Honor, directly contributing to educational opportunities for the families of America's heroes.

"We're excited to introduce the CMV Heroes Project in collaboration with Folds of Honor," said Rob Stuart, President of Creating Magic Vacations. "This partnership allows us to give back to those who have sacrificed so much for our communities and country while continuing to create unforgettable vacation experiences for our clients."

"We are grateful to CMV for its commitment to our recipients and to providing a life-changing education," said Ben Leslie, Chief Development Officer for Folds of Honor. "By creating the CMV Heroes Project, it ensures that spouses and children who deserve and need our help receive assistance and that their loved ones sacrifice is never forgotten."

Under the CMV Heroes Project, Creating Magic Vacations is also expanding its program to help current and former service members and their spouses build successful careers as an independent travel advisor. The company offers specialized training, mentorship, and resources to empower military-affiliated individuals to launch and grow their own travel business.

"The CMV Heroes Project embodies our dual commitment to serving military families through our partnership with Folds of Honor and providing meaningful career opportunities in the travel industry," added Kerri Stuart, CEO of Creating Magic Vacations. "We believe that the skills and dedication of our military community translate exceptionally well into creating magical travel experiences for others."
