day. This national network anticipates more co-working spaces to join in the months ahead, further enhancing the ecosystem and providing members with increased flexibility to find comfortable, productive spaces wherever their journey may take them.

This initiative is especially beneficial for teams across Canada who can belong to the same network and enjoy the advantages of fluidity and stability. The pricing model is designed to help national businesses keep real estate costs low, while increasing access and convenience to workspaces closer to home, thereby reducing wasted time with long commutes and encouraging employees to return to the office with inviting spaces.

Daypasses are available for purchase directly on the participating brands' websites with the use of promo code CANADAYPASS.
