Music Is Unity Foundation raises funds to provide grants to nonprofits that assist emancipated youth, offering vital support in their journey towards self-sufficiency. The foundation works to develop innovative programs, such as the exclusive "Backstage Soundcheck," to empower and inspire these young individuals as they navigate the challenges of transitioning into adulthood. Since 2007, Philip Bailey and his daughter, Trinity Bailey, have been dedicated to providing mentorship, life skills, and financial relief by investing in agencies that support this underrepresented community during their critical transition into independence.
