Growth Driver Of The Cochlear Implant Market

The increasing prevalence of hearing loss is expected to propel the growth of the cochlear implant market going forward. Hearing loss refers to a loss of hearing and is defined as if an individual's hearing abilities are less than those of someone with normal hearing, which is understood to have hearing thresholds of at least 20 dB in each ear. Cochlear implants help hearing loss patients receive and process sounds and speech and produce helpful hearing sensations for a person with severe to profound nerve deafness by electrically stimulating nerves inside the inner ear.
