

Winning Without College launches two new programs to help those without college degrees

Winning Without College launches "The Inner Circle", a new group mentoring program, along with specialized 1-on-1 high end coaching

UNITED STATES, July 16, 2024
/EINPresswire.com/ -- Winning Without College Launches Beta Program to Empower Individuals to Succeed Without a College Degree

Winning Without College, founded by entrepreneur and marketing executive Stuart Takehara, is excited to announce the launch of its beta program, "The Inner Circle". This Inner Circle aims to help you succeed in business and life without a college degree. It is focused on helping its members develop the mindset, habits and skills that are needed for real world success. Winning Without College is now inviting a select group of people to join its beta program, offering exclusive access to the Inner Circle.

Winning Without College is here to help people leverage their skills, develop a success-oriented mindset, and access the resources they need to thrive.”

Programs Tailored for Career Advancement
The new Inner Circle offers members access to on-demand coaching, workshops, and community support. This program focuses on three main areas:

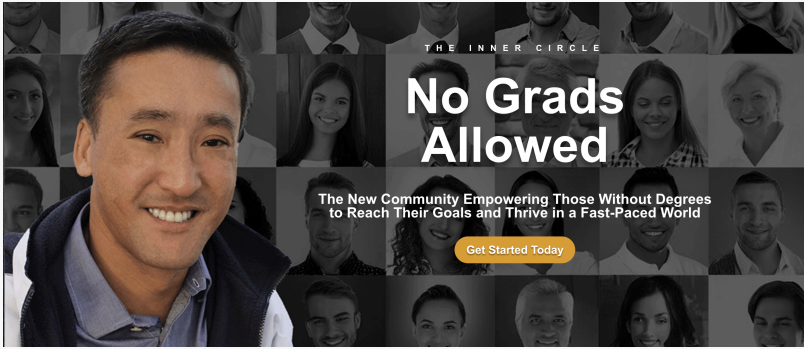

1. Career Advancement Without a Degree: Practical strategies and skills for climbing the career ladder.
2. Developing and Applying Soft Skills: Essential interpersonal skills for personal and professional growth.
3. Entrepreneurship and Side Hustles: Guidance on starting and growing successful ventures.
4. Mentorship and Networking Opportunities: Expanding ones professional circle is a key factor in success.

Winning Without College

Addressing a Growing Need

With nearly 40% of individuals who start college dropping out and 60% of people lacking a college degree, Winning Without College addresses a significant need in today's job market. "Our goal is to provide an alternative pathway to success for the millions who don't see college as the right fit for them," Takehara explains.
