On April 20th, at the University of Southern California, Pam Fiecke signed and gave out copies of her insightful book, “Inspirational Stories That Spark Our Emotions and Touch the Heart and Soul,” during the largest book festival in the United States, the Los Angeles Times Festival of Books (LATFOB). The festival began in 1996 and is held on the penultimate weekend of April, hosted by the University of Southern California. The mission of LATFOB is to feature vendors, authors, and publishers. Among the events are panel discussions, storytelling, and performances for children, as well as the Los Angeles Times book prize ceremony.

The author, Pam Fiecke, has a successful background in business and continues to work as a nursing assistant or home health aide. She also volunteered extensively in their community, including coordinating and teaching Sunday school and organizing family-themed bingo events.

Her strong Christian faith comes from her elementary school years in a religious system. There, she was instilled with morals, values, and a love for God. She continued this path of service by teaching Sunday school and volunteering in her community. However, her talents extended beyond religion. Tests showed a knack for writing children's books, and she honed this craft further through professional training.
