

Steven Chesne Releases a Message of Unity and Commonality With New World Music Album, 'Descendants (in 79 Languages)'

Award-winning composer Steven Chesne's new album, "Descendants (in 79 Languages)", is similar in spirit to "It's a Small World" — but for the modern age.

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, July 23, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Brahmasong Records announces the world-wide release of Steven Chesne's new album, "Descendants (in 79 Languages)".

The album interweaves the single phrase "We are the descendants" — but in 79 different languages including Khmer, French, Igbo, Portuguese, Xhosa, Korean, and Ukrainian, among many others. This new album, created by composer Steven Chesne, is an eclectic collection of 14 songs that cross the genre lines of World-Beat, New Age, Neo-Classical, and Electronica.

This first-of-its-kind collection is the fruit of four years of production. It took Mr. Chesne a year to acquire and study recordings of accurate translations from native speakers in all 79 languages and then to compose a different melody for each phrase so that all of the phrases worked together musically. Another year was spent connecting with eminent vocalists and arranging recordings all over the world, from Madagascar to Albania, from Kenya to the Netherlands. The next two years were devoted to creating additional songs using these phrases, and producing the album and upcoming video.

"Descendants (in 79 Languages)", shares a similar spirit as Disney's "It's a Small World" — but for the modern age. It is exploratory, totally unique, and with a contemporary spirit that transports listeners through a mosaic of captivating sounds. The powerful words “We are the descendants” form the basis for the album and these are nearly the only lyrics in the songs. These words represent our shared origin, the interconnectedness of all humanity.

“While there are countless things that various peoples and cultures disagree about, even to the point of violence, one thing that all of us accept in common is the fact that we all descend from a common source, whatever that may be.”
