surprise, but piles of money terrify me. They terrify me solely because they erode. Given today's rate of inflation, they're eroding especially fast. Rivers of money (or cash flow) is what personally give me the greatest peace of mind. It's the most secure income strategy in real estate. Thinking of cash flow as a river is the simplest way to analyze your portfolio. The river coming in MUST be larger than the river going out. That's how you create a profitable real estate portfolio."
