Financial Auditing services examine an objective and evaluate the financial statement of an organization. The main aim of financial auditing services is to make sure that the financial records are fair and accurate representation of the transactions they claim to represent. These financial audits can be conducted intentionally by an employee of an organization or externally by an outside Certified Public Accountant (CPA). All organizations received this financial audit statement yearly. These audit statements consist of income statements, balance sheet or cash flow statements. Lenders often require the results of an external audit annually as part of their debt covenants. Audits are a legal requirement due to the compelling incentives to intentionally misstate financial information in an attempt to commit fraud. Financial audit services provide assurance that management has presented a true and fair view of a company's financial performance and position in accordance with well-defined rules and procedures. For a buyer to make a well-informed investment decision, however, he/she should understand that an audit is a complement to, rather than a substitute for, a specifically tailored financial due diligence investigation of the investment target.
