Guardian Recovery, a leading national behavioral healthcare provider, is proud to announce its participation in the Association for Behavioral Health and Wellness' Corporate Partner Program. As a national voice for payers that provide behavioral health insurance benefits to more than 200 million people, ABHW is dedicated to advancing federal legislation and regulations that increase access to and improve the quality of mental health and substance use disorder care.

Guardian Recovery is thrilled to be part of the Corporate Partner Program, and we look forward to collaborating with the ABHW and its members to make a positive impact in the behavioral health space."

Maks Danilin, Chief Revenue Officer at Guardian Recovery expressed enthusiasm about the firm's participation in the program. "Guardian Recovery is thrilled to be a part of the Corporate Partner Program, and we look forward to collaborating with the ABHW and its members to make a positive impact in the behavioral health space," he said.

Through the ABHW's Corporate Partner Program, companies can advise health plans about public policy interests and concerns, focus on areas of common interest, interact with key behavioral healthcare executives, and identify new opportunities to work together. The overall goal is to ensure access to quality care and improve overall health outcomes.

"Our participation in the Corporate Partner Program underscores our commitment to improving behavioral health services and advocating for policies that will make a real difference in the lives of our clients and the entire community," said Josh Scott, CEO of Guardian Recovery. "Joining the ABHW's Corporate Partner Program allows us to leverage collective expertise and resources to enhance access to behavioral health services and improve outcomes for our clients."

ABHW's President and CEO, Pamela Greenberg, expressed similar enthusiasm regarding Guardian Recovery's participation. "We are pleased to welcome our newest Corporate Partner, Guardian Recovery," she said. "Guardian is a leader in substance use and mental health disorder treatment with two decades of experience providing a full continuum of care for clients and their families throughout the recovery process, and we look forward to Guardian's participation in our Corporate Partner Program."
