Megan Van Zyl, 2023 Conference Attendee and CEO of Cancer Peace University, "The Beljanski Integrative Cancer Conference was a life-changing experience. It was the best conference I have ever been to. I have left so inspired with so many great connections in the integrative cancer world so that we can help more cancer patients!"

"Since President Nixon launched the War on Cancer in 1971, and despite its 2016 relaunch in the form of a Cancer Moonshot, the global burden of cancer incidence - as well as the global number of cancer deaths - continues to rise. To address this failure, it is more important than ever to treat disease at the root of the problem and look at the body as one integrated system, not a collection of independent organs with various symptoms that need to be turned off," says Sylvie Beljanski. "For a different outcome, let's look at cancer differently. After all, doing the same thing again and again and hoping for a different result is the definition of insanity."
