“Through our annual sponsorship of Cricket's Hope, we facilitate the provision of restorative and trauma-informed care via art, camp, and specialized programming.” Stated ABSI President, Andrew Patterson. “This summer, children attending the camps will benefit from these enriching activities, designed to promote healing and growth.”

One of the highlights for the children will be enjoying their favorite meal on the way back from camp. Every child will have a delightful experience at their consensus favorite stop, In-N-Out.

“In-N-Out is a great place because its menu covers such a broad swath of tastes,” offered Clinical Director, Natalie Taguchi-Solorio. “Children that want the usual offering of a burger and fries can get that, while others who might have a food allergy can get their meal easily made up in a way that is food friendly.”

Through this partnership, ABSI and Cricket's Hope are working together to ensure that children can become their best and most resilient selves. Cricket's Hope camps offer a unique blend of therapeutic activities and joyful experiences that contribute significantly to the well-being and development of each child.
