

Archeon Medical partners with AED Professionals to expand US distribution of EOlife and EOlife X devices

BESANCON, DOUBS, FRANCE, July 26, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Archeon Medical, a pioneering French healthcare technology firm, is thrilled to announce a new distribution agreement with AED Professionals, a renowned distributor of emergency medical devices in the United States. This strategic partnership will see AED Professionals distributing Archeon Medical's state-of-the-art EOlife and EOlife X devices, designed for the monitoring of manual ventilation.

The EOlife and EOlife X devices represent a significant advancement in the field of emergency medical care.

These cutting-edge devices are engineered to provide accurate, real-time monitoring of manual ventilation, ensuring optimal patient outcomes during critical moments. The EOlife series is particularly valuable for first responders, emergency medical technicians, and healthcare providers, offering a reliable solution for effective and efficient patient ventilation management.

"We are excited to collaborate with AED Professionals, a company that shares our commitment to enhancing patient care through innovative technology," said Alban De Luca, CEO of Archeon Medical. "This partnership will allow us to extend the reach of our EOlife and EOlife X devices across the United States, providing healthcare professionals with the tools they need to improve patient outcomes in emergency situations and to follow the American Heart Association guidelines for manual ventilation."

AED Professionals, known for their expertise and dedication to distributing high-quality emergency medical equipment, is equally enthusiastic about the partnership, as expressed by the President and COO, Michael K. Lall: "I am proud to speak on behalf of my team at AED Professionals and share our remarkable experience with the EOlife and EOlife X trainer ventilation feedback devices from Archeon. As a premier distributor of emergency medical
