Elle E.D. Live on Stage

Elle E.D. is particularly excited about the Washington, D.C. show at The Anthem, which she considers a homecoming. Reflecting on this milestone, Elle E.D. shared, "I came to Los Angeles in pursuit of my dream, and although the work I have done with Lady Gaga at the Super Bowl performance and with Nicki Minaj, Justin Bieber, and Miley Cyrus has been fulfilling, nothing feels better than the realization that on August 7, 2024, I will be able to share the stage with the legendary Black Eyed Peas and Flyana Boss. I love those girls and all they stand for, and I cannot believe that a scene from my dream is about to come true."

Elle E.D.'s career began as a dancer for Natalia Kills, who was also an opening act, making this a full-circle moment for her. Her next single, "Prayed for This," perfectly captures her lifelong dream coming true.

About Elle E.D.

Elle E.D. is a Los Angeles-based visionary hip-hop artist who has spent much of her career in the shadows of some of the world's biggest stars. From Lady Gaga to Nicki Minaj, Miley Cyrus, Fergie, Magic!, Mary J. Blige, and Queen Latifah, many have benefitted from the creative drip that Elle E.D. brings both to the studio and the stage. Elle E.D. labels herself as "a beacon for the culture," striving to bring balance back to hip hop, especially for women. She is claiming her seat at the table and is not only someone to listen to but someone to experience. She started 2023 with a bang as a headlining performer at two star-studded pre-Grammy events hosted by Teyana Taylor and Coi Leray. Known for her witty wordplay and unique cadences, Elle E.D.'s sound has been affectionately referred to as a "Baby Goat," and during a Dash Radio interview, radio host Soul Brother V-Luv coined her as a "female Kendrick Lamar," with the playfulness of Doja Cat and the showmanship of Missy Elliott. Her upcoming single, "Prayed for This," is a true reflection of her journey and lifelong dream coming to fruition.
