Aaron Franklin

provider of digital marketing solutions for real estate professionals, reaffirms its commitment to supporting single agents and small teams with the expansion of its coaching team. The initiative underscores Ylopo's dedication to empowering agents to maximize their business potential through personalized coaching and innovative digital marketing strategies.

Jim Hill and Chris Phares, both seasoned real estate professionals and valued Ylopo clients, have joined the coaching team to focus specifically on enhancing support for single agents and small teams. Their extensive industry experience and firsthand knowledge of Ylopo's platform uniquely position them to guide agents in leveraging the Ylopo product suite to drive lead generation and business growth.

Jim Hill began his career in Raleigh, NC, balancing roles as a Realtor and Engineer before fully embracing Ylopo's coaching resources. His journey, alongside his wife Lori and their adorable Havanese puppy, Olive, exemplifies the transformative impact of Ylopo's solutions on individual agent success.

Chris Phares brings a wealth of expertise across various real estate roles, including agent, ISA, coach, and operations manager. His proficiency in system design and scripting, complemented by an NLP practitioner certification, equips him to deliver tailored strategies that optimize client outcomes and operational efficiency.

As part of their roles, Jim and Chris will host daily office hours (available to all clients), conduct personalized training sessions, develop targeted resources, and collaborate on new product innovations designed specifically for single agents and small teams. Their contributions aim to streamline workflows, enhance lead conversion capabilities, and empower agents to excel in today's competitive real estate landscape.
