Growth Driver Of The Scleroderma Market

The greater prevalence of scleroderma is driving the scleroderma market going forward. Scleroderma is a chronic autoimmune disease characterized by the abnormal growth of collagen, a protein that forms the structure of skin and other tissues. An unregulated immune response, possibly triggered by various environmental factors, leads to the development of this condition. As the number of cases rises, the importance of improved diagnosis and treatment becomes evident. Scleroderma therapeutics are crucial to managing illness and alleviating symptoms by regulating the immune response and mitigating exposure to environmental risk factors.
