Growth Driver Of The Interbody Fusion Cages Market

The rise in spinal cord injuries is expected to propel the growth of the interbody fusion cages market going forward. A spinal cord injury is caused by damage to the spinal cord, which is the network of nerves that carries signals from the brain to the body's other organs. The rise in spinal cord injuries is due to falls, traffic accidents, sports and recreational activities, occupational injuries, violence, illnesses, and medical problems. Interbody fusion cages are vital in treating spinal cord injuries by promoting bone fusion, providing structural support, and improving the spine's stability and function.
