

100 Days of "The Talking Stick"

Rave Reviews for Author Donna Levin's Fifth Novel

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, USA, August 1, 2024

/EINPresswire.com/ -- It's exactly one hundred days now since the release of author Donna Levin's fifth novel, "The Talking Stick," and the book is connecting with readers. Called, "A novelist to keep high on your reading list" by the Los Angeles Times, the San Francisco-based writer is getting widespread reviews and feedback on the women's fiction story that was released April 23rd.

Levin's previous writing and papers have been selected to be part of the Boston University archives on twentieth century authors. Her novels also are part of the "California Fiction" collection in the California State Library.

"The Talking Stick" is a contemporary novel about four women who use a talking stick in their support group—a talking stick that may or may not have magical powers. The novel examines memory in a creative way, and the way people revise their memories to align with their personal narratives.
