proudly presents "The Golden Chain," a solo exhibition by contemporary artist Matias Di Carlo, curated by international curator Rachel D. Vancelette opens to the public August 29th, offering an immersive journey through the profound connections between art, nature, and material transformation. The solo exhibition opening coincides with the Telluride Film Festival, enhancing the town's vibrant cultural atmosphere.

Matias Di Carlo, a fourth-generation ironsmith from Buenos Aires, transforms metal and fire into exquisite sculptures. Currently residing near Malaga, Spain, Di Carlo draws inspiration from various disciplines, including landscape architecture and rock climbing. "The Golden Chain" delves into the alchemical pursuit—a timeless quest for the transformation of materials. Di Carlo's sculptures combine traditional craftsmanship with contemporary innovation, inviting viewers to contemplate the eternal cycle of creation and destruction. His work explores the dynamics between Void, Māteria, and new layers of reality, revealing new insights in every angle, edge, and fold. Di Carlo will be in residency at Steepprock Joinery, creating on-site artworks inspired by Telluride's surroundings. His abstract sculptures, crafted from corten steel, aluminum, iron, and concrete from all scales to monumental have gained international attention for their distinctive expression and commitment to sustainability, collected and presented at institutions such as Artipelag Museum, Sweden, Europos Parkas Vilnius, Lithuania and Malaga City Port, Promenade, Spain.
