The U.S. Department of Energy estimates that a house that is not properly insulated loses 35 percent of its energy through the walls and another 25 percent through the roof. To address that problem, USA Insulation offers proprietary USA Premium Injection Foam® Insulation that is manufactured in-house and provides ultimate protection for homes. With a fast application process, this premium foam insulation fills cracks and crevices that most other insulation products can't and ensures maximum energy efficiency.

"We saw a void in the market for quality insulation services in existing homes," says Mike Kegley, Sr. co-owner of USA Insulation Central Kentucky. "Because there was no national building code requiring insulation prior to 1990, there are more than 160,000 homes in Central Kentucky that are likely not properly insulated."

Established in 1985, USA Insulation has been providing quality insulation products and services for over 35 years. With more than 125,000 success stories to date, the brand is well on its way to providing comfort and savings to homeowners across the U.S.

Mike Kegley adds, "Insulating homes with our injection foam technology not only makes them more energy-efficient, thus providing a return on the investment, but also ensures that families can enjoy a more comfortable living environment year-round."

USA Insulation has more than 60 owner-operated locations in 27 states, including Jeffersontown and Erlanger, Kentucky. Homeowners can find a location near them and request a free home insulation inspection and estimate on USA Insulation's website USAInsulation.net/Central-Kentucky and find us on Facebook by searching USA Insulation of Central Kentucky.
