This testing included parents, children, and educators filling out a questionnaire evaluating their experience with the product.

Specifically, they analyzed the products on desirability, quality, sturdiness, interactivity, packaging, stimulation and engagement, among others.

"The Springfree Trampoline really delivers on its promise of endless fun and safety," according to the National Parenting Center's analysis. "Its compact size comfortably accommodates one child for bouncing and performing tricks, making it an ideal choice for smaller spaces."
