Billboard Hip-Hop Artist DPB Brings Anti-Bullying Straight to Schools and Communities Across the Nation With "I Feel So Good Today" (Happy Mix) Video Release

CINCINNATI, OHIO, UNITED STATES, August 6, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As schools kick off the new year, David Paul Brooks \(DPB\), positive rap artist and songwriter has released "I Feel So Good Today" (Happy Mix), to help children across the nation. DPB's goal is to give the youth an alternative and cutting-edge message through music that can set them free from painful issues they may be dealing with, in a relatable art form.

DPB's new single and music video addresses the nation's growing issue of bullying. Partners and animators

Ouiwey Collins and Brent Beck set this new music visual message in the school environment as most reported incidents happen to children within educational facilities, in transit such as on school buses and on playgrounds. When speaking about "I Feel So Good Today", DPB expressed; "This video demonstrates that if you take the positive approach to any bad situation, you can change the narrative to be a positive outcome. Just like the example in the video about someone being bullied (Jimmy), he had a positive attitude and said nothing would ruin his day. Jimmy treaded the Bully (Bobby B) with a positive caring attitude. Jimmy also helped Bobby B later when he slipped and fell in the hallway, and because he was positive and acted with kindness to the bully, it changed the bully's heart and they became friends. The message of this video is a movement we call 'share some love, give someone a hug'. If we all did that, the world would be a much better place to live, and bullying would stop. I wrote the song to allow everyone to wake up
