Growing Aircraft Deliveries Propel Market Growth

The growing number of aircraft deliveries is a key driver of the aircraft galley carts market. Aircraft delivery, the final stage of the manufacturing process, involves handing over the completed aircraft to the customer. As airlines take possession of new planes, they require the necessary food and beverage service equipment, including galley carts.

According to The Boeing Company, around 42,595 new commercial aircraft valued at $8 trillion are expected to be delivered globally by 2042, which will drive the demand for aircraft galley carts.
