

11-Year-Old S.T.E.M. Toy Entrepreneur Demonstrates How to Make Electricity with Food at 5 Whole Foods Markets in Georgia

Ava N. Simmons Brings Her Educational S.T.E.M. Kits to Georgia's Whole Foods Markets While Seeking to Inspire Young Minds

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, UNITED STATES, August 7, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Durham, NC native Ava N. Simmons, an 11-year-old entrepreneur and founder of Team Genius Squad, is making a special stop in Georgia as part of her national tour to promote her educational S.T.E.M. experiment kits. These hands-on kits, designed to teach children how to generate electricity from food, will be showcased at five Whole Foods Market locations across the state.

Ava, who has already gained recognition as "Ava the S.T.E.M. Princess®" and "Ava the S.T.E.M.

Ambassador™," will demonstrate her kits and interact with attendees. Despite being neurodivergent and facing challenges like dyslexia and dysgraphia, Ava has developed 16 S.T.E.M. toys and authored three books, including her latest, "Ava Discovers Her Inner Genius using S.T.E.M.," which she will autograph and distribute during the events.
