

Wilson MD Aesthetics Introduces ATTIVA iRF for Advanced Face and Body Tightening

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA, USA, August 13, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Wilson MD Aesthetics is excited to announce the arrival of ATTIVA™ iRF, a cutting-edge subdermal treatment designed to enhance skin texture and tighten areas of the face and body. This innovative technology offers long-lasting improvements with little to no downtime, providing patients with near-surgical results with a minimally invasive procedure.

"We are thrilled to bring ATTIVA™ iRF to our clinic. It's incredibly rewarding to see the immediate improvements in our patients' skin after the treatment. The best part is knowing that these results will continue to get even better over the next few months. It's a fantastic option for anyone looking to enhance their appearance with minimal downtime," said Dr. Deborah Wilson, MD.

This treatment delivers precisely controlled energy to improve skin elasticity and stimulate the natural production of collagen and elastin. By uniformly heating the subdermal tissue layers, ATTIVA™ effectively treats key areas of concern, including the face, neck, décolleté, and upper arms. This advanced treatment addresses common issues such as sagging skin and loss of elasticity, helping patients achieve a more youthful appearance.

The proprietary radiofrequency technology of ATTIVA™ is introduced subdermally through a cannula, offering unique benefits in the structural and functional restoration of the extracellular matrix (ECM).

This technology is both efficient and safe, featuring a Double Temperature Control system and an external thermocontrol camera for constant monitoring. Most patients notice immediate skin improvements, with optimal results visible after 2 to 3 months as new collagen forms.

We are thrilled to bring ATTIVA™ iRF to our clinic. It's incredibly rewarding to see the immediate improvements in our patients' skin after the treatment."
