The Twin Lakes backpack, known for its patented swing-arm technology, allows anglers to effortlessly access their gear without removing the pack. This feature is particularly useful when wading through the Silver Creek Preserve, where quick and easy access to flies, leaders, and other essential items is key to a successful and enjoyable day on the water.

Sam Ernst, a seasoned guide at Silver Creek Outfitters, had this to say about the new product: "The Twin Lakes backpack from Paxis is tailor made for a day spent meandering through Silver Creek Preserve. The swing arm design allows one to easily accomplish all fly and leader changes, while still having enough storage for lunch and photography equipment."

The Twin Lakes backpack isn't just for anglers. With ample storage and a comfortable, durable design, it's perfect for photographers and outdoor enthusiasts who need a versatile pack that can handle the demands of a full day in nature. Whether you're capturing the beauty of Silver Creek or simply enjoying a day of fly fishing, the Twin Lakes backpack is your go-to companion.

"We're excited to partner with Silver Creek Outfitters to bring our Twin Lakes backpack to their customers," said Alex Wolf, Marketing Director at Paxis Pax.
